IE GLOBAL KNOWLEDGE REQUIREMENT (2022-2023 CATALOG)

Today's engineers work on global projects in culturally diverse environments. To help prepare for this environment, students in Industrial Engineering (starting with the 2022-23 catalog) must meet a global knowledge requirement. This can be accomplished in one of two ways:

1. Through participation in a study abroad program of 6 or more weeks in length during which course credit is earned.

2. By taking an LSU General Education course that meets the global knowledge requirement (the course will also count towards the general education requirement). Currently approved courses are kept on a list available in, the College of Engineering office. For a course to be included on this list, it must include instruction and guidance on at least two of the following:

   a) Systematically compare the ideas, values, images, cultural artifacts, economic structures, technological developments, or attitudes of people from different modern societies.
   b) Identify the historical context of ideas and cultural practices of global cultures and their dynamic relations to current societal contexts.
   c) Explain how a culture changes in response to internal and external pressures.

   Students may take any one of the following courses to meet the global knowledge requirement under option #2:

Arts:
   • ARTH 2470 Survey of Modern to Contemporary Art
   • HNRS 2021 Colloquium in the Arts
